

Published every two weeks, The Parliament Magazine aims to encourage debate and discussion and inform policy making.

With an editorial board consisting of MEPs from all major political groups to provide advice and assistance, expert correspondents and staff writers to provide analysis of the current issues, The Parliament Magazine reflects and reports on the European political institutions, providing politically impartial coverage of the key events.

In This Issue

Swedish Presidency Guide

The guide will be produced in association with the Swedish government. The content will include interviews and/or articles from key Swedish politicians and relevant government ministers, who will be invited to write and promote the main Swedish presidency issues in their portfolios.

The guide will also include articles and analysis of the Swedish presidency goals from the Swedish business community, NGOs and cultural and regional personalities such as city mayors.

Utilising the Parliament Magazine's 12 years experience of working at the heart of the EU, the editorial team will also ask for analysis and comment from senior MEPs and European commissioners.

We will also include data and information which could be useful to our readership, including an overview of government ministers, a list of Swedish deputies in the European parliament, information on regional bodies etc.

Reception in the European Parliament:

The Parliament Magazine will hold a special reception in September at the European Parliament, attended by MEPs, senior officials from the European Commission, EU stakeholders, Brussels-based diplomats and representatives from the Swedish government.
